The Daily Quote

“More Americans oppose than support a Republican plan to revamp the Medicare healthcare program for seniors, presenting a challenge to the party ahead of next year's presidential and congressional elections. A Reuters/Ipsos poll shows 43 percent of respondents oppose the Medicare plan proposed by Representative Paul Ryan, chairman of the House Budget Committee. Only 37 percent of respondents said they supported and 20 percent said they were not sure. Voter anger over the Ryan proposal that would revamp Medicare into a voucher-like system for future retirees helped give Democrats a victory in a traditionally Republican congressional district in New York last month.”
